classic cocktails

This list of historical cocktails features some of the most famous and fundamental adult beverages of our time.

hemingway daiquiri

The prolific drinker and legendary writer Ernest Hemingway invented this daiquiri circa 1930 in Cuba. Served up. “I drink to make other people more interesting.” -E.H.

white rum • freshly squeezed grapefruit juice • simple syrup fresh lime juice • maraschino liqueur • served up

negroni

A man named Count Negroni inadvertently invented this bitter, yet well-balanced cocktail in 1920 Italy, when he asked his bartender to make his regular drink but, “instead of soda, put some gin in there.”

Gin • Sweet Vermouth • Campari

vesper martini

“I never have more than one drink before dinner. But I do like that one to be large and very strong and very cold and very well-made.” -James Bond

Vodka • Gin • Aperitif Blanc • Bitters • Orange

vieux carré (voo-KAH-ray)

This drink was invented in 1938 by Walter Bergeron, the head bartender at the Monteleone Hotel in New Orleans, and is named after the French term for what we call “The French Quarter” ... le Vieux Carré (“Old Square”).

Cognac • Rye • Sweet Vermouth • Benedictine • Peychaud and Angostura Bitters

pimm's cup

While the drink was born in a London bar at the hands of a bartender named James Pimm, this is the signature recipe of the Napoleon House in New Orleans.

Pimms • Lemonade • Citrus Soda • Cucumber • Lemon

corpse reviver no. 2

The Corpse Reviver family of cocktails are intended as ‘hair of the dog’ hangover cures, hence the name. Most of the corpse reviver cocktails have been lost to time, but the gin-based Corpse Reviver #2 cocktails that were first listed in the Savoy Cocktail Handbook by Harry Craddock in 1930 have survived to this day.

Gin • Apertif Blanc • Herbsaint • Lemon Juice

This beautiful and historic two-story building offers an elegant and ambient setting for your special day or event. Let our staff take care of your needs, and help you create the perfect memory!

the water of life

It's no secret Scotland produces the finest blended and single-malt whiskies in the world.

And no wonder: The Scots, taking advantage of their unique, peaty waters, have had at least five hundred years of practice in perfecting the art of distillery.

The origins of Scotch are lost in the mists of history. However, it is known that the Celts in the British Isles began using grain, primarily malt, as a source of alcohol somewhere between the 10th and 15th centuries.

The oldest known preference to Scotch whisky is from 1494, when the product was called uisge beatha (pronounced "wee-ska-bah), meaning "water of life." This was corrupted into usky or wusky and, in 1755, was included under its present spelling in Dr. Samuel Johnson's dictionary.

Whisky making was well-established in the country by the 16th century and first taxed in 1644. In 1909, it was declared that whisky wholly distilled in Scotland was Scotch and other countries agreed to this principal.
